Before the Digiworld-Mimi

Before the Digiworld- Mimi

"Interesting Izzy. Well, i guess I want to get it over with now, so I'll go" said Mimi "My life is sorta interesting. I guess I'll start with when I left after the terrorist bombing like Izzy."

"You know that the terroist bombing took place in summer right? I moved completely away from the area of the bombing. There, I went to school where everyone was country people, you know what i mean, right? They were really conutryish and when I came they were like "wow! you where makeup? WOW!" And all that stuff. It was like another country! Another world! Pure hicks. When I went to school there, they were learning stuff I had learned in the previous years! My parents didn't like their new jobs and they didn't like the country air we moved to another city in Japan, in the summer after we had arrived, pretty far from where I was in the country.

"There, I met 2 other people like me, hated sports, like to dress up and had millions of different outfits. They were good kids, they didn't smoke and were really nice, or that's what I thought. We went to the mall one and we went into the store that was really expensive and I forget what the name was. They started to look at the jewellery and told me to stuff some in my pocket. I was surprised they asked me to do something like that, and so I told them to do it themselves. They were surprised that i said no to them, because they were never turned down before. They whispered something to each other and we left that store.

"I thought that maybe they would just shrug it off and wouldn't mind that I didn't do what they wanted me to. We went into a convenience store because they said they forgot their money and asked me if I could buy them some things. i was like sure, whatever. Then they picked the most expensive things that the convenience store holded! i know convenience stores didn't have that expensice things but they bought like power beads braclets, the real ones, the expensive ones. I told them forget it. They said something to me that I'll never forget

''You are such a wimp and such a loser Mimi. You wouldn't steal for us, you wouldn't buy us anything. What wrong with you? You know that anyone else would die to be in your place, don't you?' I told them 'yea they might want to be me right now, but once they get to know you they'd run away. you think i'd be a dimwit and let you take advanage of me? I think your the loser now.' Then I walked away. i was pretty happy with myself because I didn't think that i had the guts to stand up for myself. When school started, I found that I just had to be me for people to like me.

"My parents were watching the news in the area that we lived in before ever since we left because they loved the area so much. Nothing had happened there for a 2 years so they decided to move back. I was confident in myself that I would make friends so i had no objections. We left in the summer (do you see a pattern here?) and my parents sent me to a summer camp to get to know the kids. That my life. It seems more interesting in my mind., Whatever."
